BRAND STATEMENT

Full stack web developer with over a decade background in sales. Completing the Full-Stack bootcamp program at the University of Adelaide has provided me with skills in JavaScript, HTML & CSS, DOM and a core understanding of the need for, and implementation of, responsive design. I hope to bridge the communication gap between software developers and stakeholders within and outside the company, using my sales experience as bedrock for clear and concise communication. I am passionate about ongoing personal development and learning, which is particularly important in the software business as technologies evolve and perish in short periods of time.
